SHERIFF HOLDS MAN FOR ALLEGED ATTACK AGAINST DRY AGENT

Bunyard Charged With Violation of State Gun Law; One Held on Battery Charge Following Raid

hibition investigator by the name of Wilkie, who is said to have been attacked at his cabin at an auto camp after a raid had been staged by Sheriff McGrath upon information furnished by Wilkie. Engaged in the attack upon the prohibition investigator also was Stack Hermosillo, who was arrested and charged with battery and later released upon posting $100 bail.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Arnerich of Emig's office. When Bunyard saw that the house was surrounded he is alleged to have tried to get rid of two automatic pistols through a window. Deputy Sheriff Rhodes, however, was standing near the window and caught the guns as they were thrown out.

Bunyard was booked at the county jail on a charge of violating the state gun law. The arrest grew out of the alleged attack upon a pro-

"We, the undersigned working people, mechanics, and vot^{ers} of Redwood City and the Third Township, protest the summary action of the San Mateo county board of supervisors in taking steps to prevent the proposed Fair Oaks Racing and Polo club establishment.

"We feel that the $1,000,000 to be benefit, especially in face of the current depression. This will help merchants, tradesmen, laborers, mechanics and factories, not only during the period of construction, but also during the holding of events at which time local hotels, restaurants and stores, etc., would be taxed to capacity. If San Bruno receives greater benefit from such events, why shouldn't Redwood City?

"We have no interest whatsoever in Fair Oaks Racing and Polo club, or any similar project other than the increase in business in this district."

It is understood that a large num-

Prunes Require
Plenty of Water

GERBER, Cal., July 2 (UP)—No matter how young a prune may be, we are told, it is always full of wrinkles.

And the reason for the wrinkles is that it takes so much water to produce a prune, according to C. E. Conway, president of the Coneleau Water company at Los Molinos.

A prune tree will consume 14 tons of water in a month, Conway says, and in 5 months—the time for growing the prune—the tree will drink 72 tons of water, producing an average of 70 pounds of ripe prunes. This means approximately a ton of water to produce a pound of prunes.

Success

The price of success in any worthy undertaking may properly be measured in terms of right motives, hard work and persistency. Some men and women have striven for years along a given line before the first faint evidences of success manifested themselves. During those long years no doubt bitter disappointments were realized, enthusiasm was dampened, and the temptation often arose to abandon all further activity along that line and attempt to break into some new profession, business or trade. Some may have succumbed to the temptation, pursued other courses, either made good or drifted along from one position to another in an aimless manner. Others have persisted in their charted course, have overcome great obstacles and eventually won the hard fight for success.

Some men are prone to regard success as pure luck—a stroke of good fortune perhaps—but "luck" has frequently proven an intangible superstition, a "fickle jade," as any seasoned player in games of chance will admit if he is candid.

Luck never crowned a worthy achievement. It never proved of permanent value.

Every material manifestation of man's ingenuity and craftsmanship, whether it be a skyscraper, a railroad bridge, or a simple kitchen utensil, reflects the skill of the thinker—the methodical planning, measuring and computing of a trained and active mind. This principle is true of practically every business, trade or profession. We frequently read of fortunes being amassed by men who started in life as ragged, friendless urchins, and naturally admire the worthwhile qualities possessed by them that gave them the courage to battle against great odds and grimly to resolve not to be beaten in the game of life. Mighty enterprises have developed from the untiring efforts of self-educated men whose early years were marked by actual deprivation and hardship.

Let the thousands of young men and women who, during the last month, graduated from the various universities and colleges of the nation and who are now ready to step out into the world to make a livelihood, be impressed with the fact that their success in life depends entirely upon their own efforts. Perhaps some of them may discover that the years they spent in college were literally wasted; others, no doubt, may find their college training of immeasurable help in securing positions of importance and trust. Basically, however, the fact remains—hard work, diligence, application of useful knowledge gained, all point to success in life and make for a better nation and a more prosperous and harmonious people.

The activities of Republican and Democratic National Committee press bureaus in Washington indicates that the leaders in national politics are thinking very hard about the next presidential election. The question, "will Hoover be renominated" can be answered in only one way and that answer is in the affirmative; for the simple reason that the Republicans must stand by their own Administration, and if they can't win with Hoover then they can't expect to win at all.

There is no doubt that a number of leading Democrats are willing to undertake the task of capturing the presidency next year. Ex-Governor Al Smith and Governor Roosevelt of New York are considered whenever the slate-makers get busy. There is a very strong trend in favor of Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson Cabinet. The Democrats are also looking with some favor upon Governor Ritchie of Maryland and Ex-Governor Byrd of Virginia. Either of these men, it is felt, would make the South safe for democracy. The answer to this is that the Democrats are more concerned about Northern and Western States than about the South and for that reason a candidate is likely to be picked who will appeal to the masses of voters in large States, including New York.

Vacationing in the North

It is possible to quote no less an authority than ex-President Coolidge in advising that every person take a vacation during the summer months. "The brains of the country need relaxation and refreshment," says Mr. Coolidge, and he is going to get his own play day by laying off on writing daily syndicate letters, and by doing the unusual—which is the basis for a vacation.

Solving the World Problems

President Hoover's call for a one-year moratorium of war debt was the most spectacular act of his Administration. It had the effect of arousing the first ray of hope for business and industry since the Fall of 1929. The President has the active support of political leaders of all parties and factions, which gives assurance that the United States Congress will be in position to ratify the extension of credit to nations that owe the United States. Right now the European Governments are trying to get together to give their own collection agencies a vacation. The probabilities are that this proposal of President will work out all right. It is still too early to say that the depression in the United States is "about over" but there seems to be plenty of evidence that a great improvement is under way. The sentiment in Washington political and legislative circles is very hopeful. At least the public morale has been greatly improved.

Let Him Learn A Trade

A veteran desk lieutenant of police in a large city was talking with a group of newspaper men early one morning, after "business" had slackened a bit. "Do you know," he mused, "after all the years I have spent as a cop, I don't believe I have seen a dozen normal young men who knew some trade thoroughly ever even accused of crime. It's the young drifters, the hangers-around the corners, the 'drug store cowboys,' as they call 'em, that get into trouble. The steady young fellow who plugs through an apprenticeship and learns his trade is hardly ever a stick-up man, thug, or anything of that kind."

And the old lieutenant has the right of it. There is a steady discipline about the serving of an apprenticeship in a trade that makes for character. The craftsman has a pride, a self-reliance, a confidence in himself that is a sobering influence. The drifter, the boy who works here a while, there a couple of months, who slides around, loafing a good deal, gambling a good deal, hanging around the back room of pool parlors and speakeasies, getting pretty near to the crime-line many times and feeling that it is clever to "put one over" on the police, he is the potential gunman, the candidate for high dishonor as burglar, stick-up man, or other unlovely callings.

The man with the trade is generally better off financially than the man in what are called the "white collar jobs," too.

Editorial Circuit Rider

(A symposium of editorial comment from California newspapers)
By MELVIN LORD

There is an acute need of reform in the American jury system according to California editors.

The situation steadily has become worse to actually defeat the ends of justice rather than representing a shining example of one of the "rights" of a free people in the opinion of the editors as expressed in their daily columns.

Most of the blame is placed on the development of a legal system so technical as to be slow and burdensome as well as confusing.

In leading the attack against the present jury system, The Pasadena Star News points out that "the need of reform may be found in any criminal trial of consequence."

Continuing in this vein, the Star News claims that "opposing attorneys maneuver to eliminate as many jurors as possible who give evidence of mentality and will power. The purpose is to get as many unthinking or jellyfish type of jurors as possible so that they may be confused and bewildered."

Calling attention to a recent trial in France where an American beauty prize winner who shot her husband was acquitted, The Merced Sun Star states that the jury quickly agreed with the defense attorney that the defendant was "too beautiful to be bad."

Referring to the same case The San Jose News contends that "you will find it almost impossible to recall a single case where an American court showed even mild firmness toward a charming young woman in a homicide case. We have no occasion to look down our noses at this latest French verdict."

The Imperial Valley Press believes that "it is not expecting too much for juries to show average intelligence and good sense."

"There is nothing particularly difficult about acting as a jurymen," The Press adds. "The greatest difficulty is that jurymen are often inclined to consider the addresses of attorneys to be more important than the evidence that is presented, thereby weakening the entire jury system by returning a dubious verdict."

Using another specific instance as an indication of the habits of juries in general, the Santa Ana Register comments that there is "no way of knowing how a jury arrives at values in damage cases."

While our jury system may be faulty, it is still highly desirable in the opinion of the Riverside Daily Press in commenting upon the abolition of the system by Signor Rocco, Italian minister of justice.

"It may work in Fascist Italy, just as so many other things have done, because of the iron hand in back of them. But it is totally contrary to the American idea of justice, fair play and a fighting chance to get a square deal from one's peers."

State Leads in Disease Control

By MELVIN LORD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 1.—(UP)—California has achieved conspicuous success in the control of diphtheria and typhoid fever.

This is the belief of Dr. Giles S. Porter, director of the state department of public health, according to a report on these two diseases as well as a study of the smallpox situation.

Both the diphtheria case rate and death rate for 1930 are the lowest on record for California. Based on the 1930 census, the case rate was 53.8 and the death rate 3.4 per 100,000 population.

"This represents a marked reduction from 1921 when the case rate was 259 and the death rate 17.1 per 100,000 population," Dr. Porter stated.

"While this decrease is influenced, no doubt, by factors over which there is no control, it is certain that the more extensive use of measures providing for immunization of children has played an important part in the reduced prevalence and mortality."

The report further revealed that there were only 98 deaths from typhoid fever in California during 1930 among a total of 743 reported cases—a death rate of 1.7 per 100,000 population.

"The downward trend in typhoid mortality has been quite consistent during the past 25 years," the report states. "Outbreaks of typhoid fever due to the use of contaminated water supplies seldom occur in this state."

"The improvement in general sanitation, including better methods of handling food supplies, undoubtedly has a distinct bearing upon the reduction of the death rate from 34.9 per 100,000 in 1906, to its present record low."

The state department of public health blames the fact that "vaccination against smallpox is not a popular procedure among the general population" for the fact that smallpox is comparatively prevalent. State records show that between 1920 and 1930, 39,154 cases of smallpox were reported, of which 99.63 per cent concerned persons who had never been vaccinated.

Phone Medal Honors Quick Fearlessness

Quick thinking and fearlessness abound in stories of deeds performed by three Bell System employees, to whom awards of Theodore N. Vail silver medals were announced this week.

Chief Operator Hazel H. Haasen, Clinton, Ind., foiled five bank robbers through her quickness in calling authorities, and creating a network of watchers on all roads leading out of the city. Three bandits were killed, two captured and the loot recovered.

Leonard J. Strang, Cleveland, at the risk of his life, shared his safety belt with a fellow window washer, who dangled five stories above the street, thereby saving him. Strang's companion fell when a safety strap broke, placing a terrific strain on the remaining one.

Repairman Ivan F. Vannoy, Winchester, Va., sped to Gore, 12 miles distant, mobilized forces by telephone to fight a fire which threatened the town. He directed the removal of the telephone switchboard, when the central office caught fire; thereby making possible the resumption of service within a few hours.

Theodore N. Vail memorial silver medals are accompanied by a cash award of $250. The telephone companies which employ the recipients are presented with bronze plaques.

In discussing the awards, L. C. Brown, manager for the telephone company in this city, said: "The Vail medals occupy a distinctive place. They are not given for heroism alone they do not encourage unnecessary risks. The Vail medals are particularly for those telephone people who carry out the late Theodore N. Vail's ideals in their daily responsibilities."

"Gold and silver medals are awarded by a national committee each year, under the provisions of the Vail memorial fund."

Bronze medals, given through the action of regional committees, were recently awarded to Miss Ida Sorensen, night operator, for her initiative in marshalling forces to fight a fire next door to the central office, which threatened the business district of Selma; and to C. A. Dorn, Pacific Grove, and L. W. Kehoe, Salinas, for their rescue of a man who had fallen fifty feet from a cliff to jagged, wave-washed rocks, south of Carmel."

Law Would Bar County Special Appraisements

Legislature Opposed to Hiring Special Appraisers by Counties

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 1.—Designed to prevent the expenditure of tax money for special reappraisements of property in San Mateo County, senate bill No. 522 medals are accompanied by a cash award of $250. The telephone companies which employ the recipients are presented with bronze plaques.

In discussing the awards, L. C. Brown, manager for the telephone company in this city, said: "The Vail medals occupy a distinctive place. The measure does, however, permit the commission to employ, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors, such technical assistants as may be necessary.

While this method will necessitate certain expenditures, it is claimed by proponents of the bill that the cost has just been signed by Governor Rolph.

The measure was introduced as a result of demands made by county assessors from throughout the state to prevent the awarding of reappraisal contracts to private firms after such a plan had proved to be unsatisfactory and highly expensive.

Numerous counties in the state, particularly San Diego and Alameda, have in the past, spent huge sums to have private firms equalize the assessment rolls. The results have usually been unacceptable to the assessors from an appraisal standpoint, and equally objectionable to taxpayers because of the cost.

Under the terms of the measure drawn by the assessors and the state board of equalization, the board of supervisors and assessors of any county or city and county shall determine when a reappraisal of property is necessary and shall so certify to the state board of equalization.

"Thereupon the county assessor, the chairman of the board of supervisors and the member of the state board of equalization from the district within which the county is situated, shall constitute a commission to conduct the work of appraising or reappraising the taxable property," the bill provides.

The new law, effective August 15, specifically provides that "no contract shall be made with any person, firm, association or corporation by which the duty of conducting such work of appraisal shall be delegated to any private interests."

The measure does, however, permit the commission to employ, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors, such technical assistants as may be necessary.

While this method will necessitate certain expenditures, it is claimed by proponents of the bill that the cost can be held at a minimum, and at the same time the people of the county will have a direct check on the work through the elective officers on the special commission.

Miss McPherson Weds Alfred Walker

The First Congregational Church in Santa Cruz was the setting for a very beautiful wedding Tuesday evening, when Miss Mary Belle McPherson became the bride of Mr. Alfred Edward Walker of Redwood City.

The church was artistically decorated with hydrangeas, delphinium and greenery. Baskets of mixed flowers were suspended from the balcony and in the center of the building pink and blue hydrangeas were fastened to the end of each pew. The church was entirely candle-lighted, the burning tapers casting a soft glow over the entire assemblage.

Miss Amy May sang "Calm as the Night" by Behn, and "I Love Thee" by Grieg, preceding the ceremony and when the bride and groom knelt at the altar she sang "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond. Mrs. Vera McKenna Clayton presided at the organ and played Wagner's "Wedding March" from Lohengrin as the bridal party came down the aisle.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Frederick Duncan McPherson, wore a simple white satin wedding gown made with a long train, the waist being fashioned with tight buttoned sleeves and tiny puffs at the shoulders, and an embroidered net yoke.

The bride veil was an heirloom, first worn by Mrs. Rosa B. Miller, the first bride married from the church and next worn by the bride's mother. Orange blossoms fastened the veil to a becoming cap arrangement and a band of tiny buds was fastened under the chin. A shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley and an orchid in the center, completed the bridal attire.

Pauline Ann O'Connell and Jacqueline Walker, nieces of Mr. Walker, were the flower girls. They wore dainty little girlish frocks of lavender and green, respectively, and scattered rose petals as they walked. Little Elizabeth Turner of Berkeley was the ring-bearer. She was dressed in blue tulle trimmed with pink.

Miss Lillian McPherson was her sister's maid of honor. Her gown was yellow tulle and she wore long lace mitts and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pansies.

The dresses of the four bridesmaids were made in the same style with skirts of tiny ruffles. Miss Claire Foley wore pink tulle; Miss June Rossland, lavender tulle; Miss Callie Woody, peach colored tulle and Miss Ruth Brown, green tulle. All wore long lace mitts and carried old-fashioned bouquets.

Mr. Fred Walker attended his brother as best man and the ushers were Mr. Frederick McPherson, Jr., Dr. Mahlon McPherson, brother of the bride; Mr. Harold Shand of Palo Alto and Mr. Thomas Broderick of Burlingame.

Rev. Heber St. Clair Mahood performed the ceremony and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played for the recessional.

BANK REPORT SHOWS INCREASED BUSINESS

The distinctive statewide service rendered by the Bank of America in aiding to build up the business, industrial and agricultural resources of California is reflected in the semi-annual statement of the institution, published today. The figures include both the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association and the state affiliate of the same name.

The total assets are placed at $1,120,645,127.58 and the total deposits $962,423,938.96 in the statement. Changes in the "various assets" account include an increase of $10,864,812.96 in the holdings of United States government and other bonds, bringing the total of government securities held by the bank to $1,160,116.08.

"The items of cash and due from banks," plus the "bond investment," which totals $391,738,707.41 in the aggregate, compares very favorably with the deposits of $962,423,938.96. The decrease since January in the item of "loans, discounts and bank-ers' acceptances," which amounts to $63,173,532.56 is in line with present business conditions as the funds received from this source naturally find investment in the bond account.

A decrease in deposits from the January 1 statement is accounted for to a great extent by the use of funds by the U. S. Government and other public agencies and the usual season requirements for agricultural purposes.

"The semi-annual statement of the Bank of America very closely reflects the building up process in which the state is engaged at the present time," Arnold J. Moritt, president, said. "Every major business, industrial and agricultural interest, and most of the smaller ones, are going through a process of change in order to meet not only the present conditions but to provide for the future growth that we have every reason to expect. It is a period of economic rehabilitation in which, naturally enough, the banking function is called on to play an outstanding part."

"I think it particularly significant that at no time during this period of depression have our banks forced to adopt drastic measures to meet the situation. They have provided

Safeway Stores Aid Consumer

Interesting highlights on the financial, economical and social condition existing in its stores is revealed through a comprehensive survey made by investigators for Safeway Stores, Inc.

This survey reveals that in California:

Out of 3162 employees of the company 91 per cent were men and 9 per cent were women.

Of this number the average residence in California is 10.7 years, only 110 of all the employees having lived in the state less than six months.

The average length of service in all classes is 2.9 years.

Twenty-seven per cent of the families represented on their payroll own their own homes, an indication of the financial stability and dependability of the average Safeway family. Sixty-three per cent own radios. Seventy-two per cent own a car.

A total of 2131 persons, or 67 per cent pay taxes to the total amount of $96,903 each year, an average of $45.47 per person.

Seventy-five per cent of the employees in California make charitable donations to the total amount of $43,906 each year, an average of five per cent of these gave through community chests.

In the last two statements corporation taxes and donations are not included but if they were, the total would be close to $250,000 last year.

Indicative of interest in local activities the survey revealed that 182 persons, of 5.7 per cent, belong to civic or luncheon clubs, that 1033, or 32 per cent, belong to fraternal organizations and that 2772 persons, or 87 per cent, are personally or through their family affiliated with some church.

In hundreds of instances it was found that Safeway Stores used the entire output of California producers and manufacturers.

Safeway Stores operate in 313 California towns and have chambers of commerce affiliations in 303 of them, or 97 per cent. In the remainder of them there are no chambers of commerce.

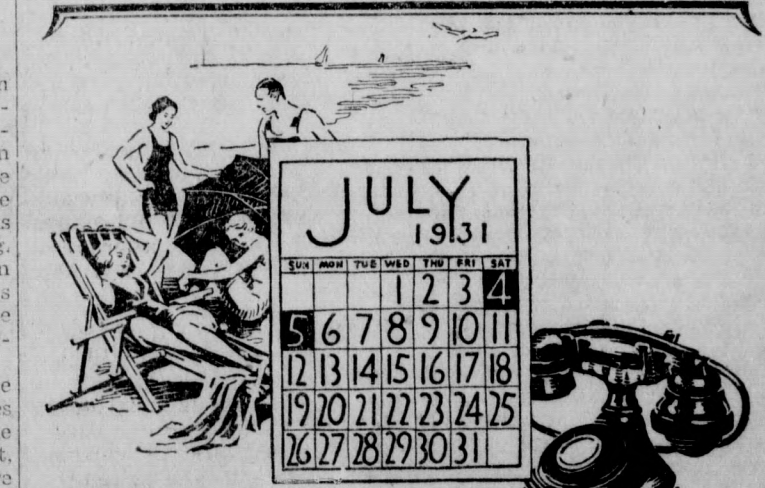

These statements are substantiated by evidence, according to the officials of the company, who believe the figures to be conclusive proof that the type of persons employed by Safeway Stores are an asset to the community in which they live and a credit to the institution which employs them.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 25 — (UP)—Clara Bow's retirement — probably temporary — from the screen has the film colony all on the alert for the first appearance of the girl who will be dubbed "The Second Clara Bow."

There are many observers who have watched them come and go in Hollywood who are willing to bet that the girl who rates the title as Clara's successor will last about a year on the screen. A year if she is lucky.

Clara left the screen suddenly one day in May after she collapsed on a set. Rumors flew that she had attempted suicide. It was said she flew into a violent temper and struck her director on the head with a mirror before she was subdued.

The rumors were denied and Miss Bow went to a Glendale sanitarium. It was said that worries over a number of "bad breaks" caused her collapse. The alleged love balm to the wife of a young Texas doctor, the Cal-Nev. $13,000 gambling adventure, the Daisy De Voe trial and the appearance of a "love life" series in a Los Angeles tabloid were mentioned as contributing causes.

When the studio announced, after several weeks, that Clara was released from her contract, the star said she was very happy.

"Now I can get well," she said "I worried constantly because I was unable to fulfill the terms of my contract."

In Hollywood at the time were several young girls of recognized movie talent. Their business representatives and friends were quick to quash suggestions that one of them might be the second Clara.

Memories still are fresh in Hollywood of ill luck which seemed to come to second Wally Reids, second Rudolph Valentinos, imitators of Charlie Chaplin, or of the late Lon Chaney.

It is recognized that pretty little Sally Starr did much better in the films before someone discovered she looked a bit like Clara Bow. Sally herself said that she liked Clara and admired Miss Bow's work, but had no desire to be known for the talents of other than Sally Starr. That helped a little.

Marlene Dietrich and her backers spent thousands of dollars and great energy to impress fans with the fact that Miss Dietrich and Greta Garbo were separate and distinct artists.

Paramount studios uncovered two young women to supplant Miss Bow in pictures interrupted by the ill health of the star. The fortunate actresses were Sylvia Sydney and Peggy Shannon.

If you want to cause a mild earthquake around Paramount just go up to the head office and ask M. P. Schulberg if the studio plans to bill either of the potential stars as a "Second Clara Bow."

Miss Bow made millions for Paramount, but Schulberg's answer will be a decided "No," and he may ring for the studio policeman. If you tarry a while you may hear Schulberg shout:

"There is only one Clara Bow in the world."

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 29 (UP)—Woman does not hold on option on the privilege of changing one's mind. Just to prove this Samuel Goldwyn has made a rapid change — and with no apparent reason. Goldwyn announced that Ina Claire would star in "The Greeks Had a Word for It," a Zoe Akins comedy.

The name, however, was to be "The Greeks Had a Name for Them." Hardly had the ink dried on the stories of the Claire vehicle than Goldwyn announced the Zoe Akins choice of name would be returned. It all was very mysterious to Hollywood.

Exit the Gangster and enter the Gigolo.

Unless the film industry signs are all wrong, the sleek-haired dancing boys are to cop the celluloid from the tough, bulky gents, who excel in "dese and dese" exclamations.

A surprisingly large number of films with such names as "Evenings for Sale" have been announced. It is predicted that Will Hayes will scan the gigolo type of play as closely as the gangster films were watched.

HOLLYWOOD, June 23 (UP)—

This may be an old joke, but William Selter wrote it into a comedy sequence for a forthcoming radio picture.

"Lady," said the tramp, "will you give me a cake of soap?"

"And what," asked the lady, "would you be doing with a cake of soap?"

"My partner's got the hiccups and I want to scare him."

Sorry if we spoiled the joke you are going to hear in the Robert Woolsey-Bert Wheeler comedy, "Full of Nonsense."

STATE SHOWS GAIN IN MILK CONSUMPTION

By MELVIN LORD

(United Press Staff Correspondent) SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 29—

Californians do plenty of drinking—strictly in keeping with the prohibition law.

Such is the inference drawn from the fact that the state consumed a total of 131,774,278 gallons of commercial milk last year.

All of which, incidentally, is a "lot" of milk. Enough in fact, to have a quart delivered to your front door every morning for the next 1,444,047 years. But even milk won't make you live quite that long.

Of the total commercial milk output of the state, 1,382,147 gallons was consumed in San Mateo county. This figure does not include milk used on farms where it is produced.

According to Dr. M. E. McDonald, chief of the bureau of dairy control of the state department of agriculture, last year's market fell slightly below the previous year, but was substantially more than the 1928 total of 128,827,209 gallons of commercial milk. A total of 132,000,407 gallons were used in 1929.

Californians, however, were not satisfied with a milk diet alone, because the dairy industry of the state found a ready market for 7,389,433 gallons of market cream, valued at $14,335,500. The commercial milk output was valued at $27,939,420 by Dr. McDonald.

The actual value at the farm of the state's dairy products, including 73,917,736 pounds of butter was $82,690,000, to indicate a steady trend toward making California the outstanding dairy state in the west.

Strangely enough, the production of commercial milk was far from being limited to the so-called "cow counties" according to the state report.

Los Angeles county led the list with 53,739,656 gallons; San Francisco, second, with 15,051,251, and Alameda, third, 12,322,039 gallons.

YOUTH SPENDS RESTLESS NIGHT WITH COPPERHEAD

OKMULGEE, Okla., July 2 (UP)—

A night's sleep with a snake caused a seven-year-old boy near here no injury other than fright.

Awakened early in the morning by the frightened cries of her son, pleading that there was something in bed with him, Mrs. Weaver arose and went to the boy's bed. She took the boy up and quieted him, thinking that he had had a bad dream.

Then she laid him back in bed, where he slept until breakfast.

In removing the cover, while making the bed, Mrs. Weaver was startled when a large copperhead snake dropped to the floor. It was believed the snake had crawled into the house in search of warmth.

SPEAKING OF SPORT BY FRANK GETTY

Tournament Proposed To Name Middle Champ

Now that Mickey Walker has resigned the world's middleweight championship—long ago declared vacant by both the National Boxing Association and the New York State Athletic Commission—an elimination tournament to decide a new champion is in order.

Although Walker consistently refused to defend his title on the ground that he was unable to find worthy opponents, the class has a wealth of talent. Doubtless none of them is the equal of Walker, regarded generally as the best of current scrappers pound for pound, but any ruling body willing to stage a title tourney will have no difficulty in finding half a dozen fighters entitled to consideration.

If the tournament were to be made an open affair the title might go to a negro fighter, although past records indicate that the negro contenders will be overlooked if the New York Commission has a hand in the tourney.

Harry Smith of Brooklyn, and Tiger Thomas of Leipersville, Pa., rival claimants to the "colored middleweight" championship, deserve berths in any tourney to decide the actual ruler of the class, and it will take a real champion to beat either of them.

The white contenders include

Vince Dundee, Baltimore veteran; his recent victims, Len Harvey of England and Ben Jebby of New York; Jack Rosenberg of New York and Leo Larrievie, a French-Canadian. Newcomer Impressive

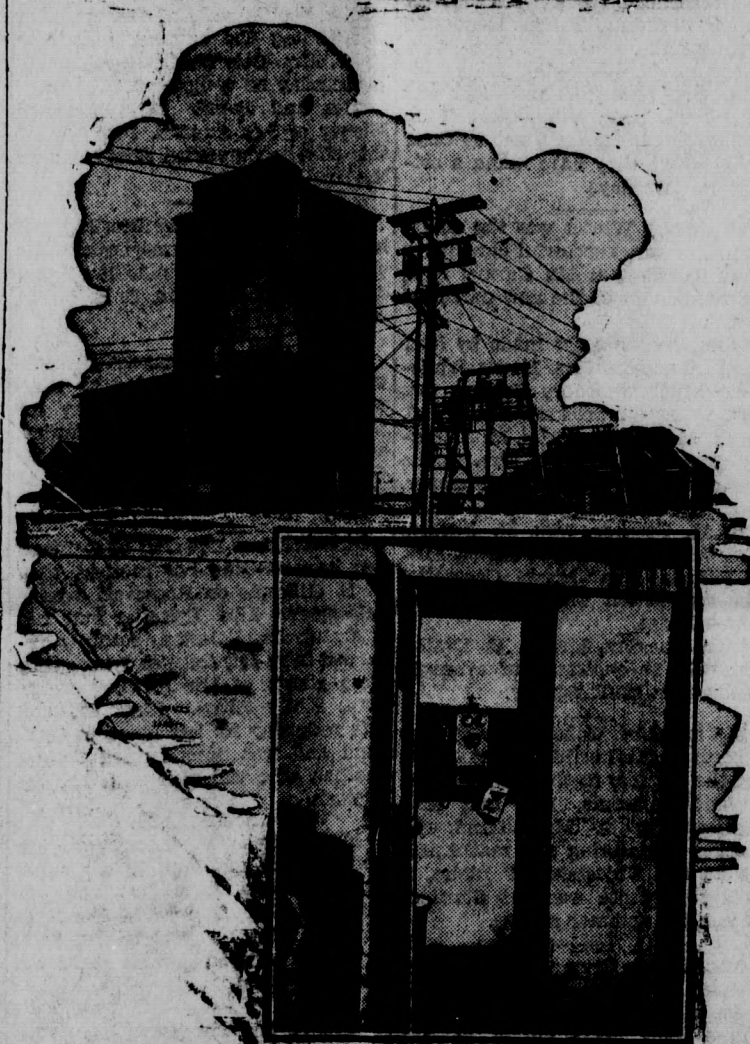

In Two First Bouts

Rosenberg, a newcomer, has been impressive in two recent bouts at Madison Square Garden and shap- es up as one of the best young prospects developed in recent years. Larrievie is another unknown, but boxing critics who have seen him declare he promises to be a second Jack Delaney.

Len Harvey, the British middleweight champion, was beaten decisively in his American bouts with Dundee and Jebby, but he is now under the management of the astute James Joy Johnston and is scheduled to return to New York soon. Johnston has great influence with the boxing commission and is almost certain to secure Len a place in the tourney, if indeed he does not get the commissioners to recognize Harvey as champion without the necessity of a tourney.

Harvey is a capable fighter, but refusal to train properly resulted in defeats in his American bouts. Under Johnston's guidance he doubtless will alter his training methods and it would not be surprising to see him fight his way to the title.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Barant a substitute.

To Lead at Woodland Concert

Sir Hamilton Harty, of Manchester, England, who will conduct his second concert in America, in the Woodland Theatre, Hillsborough, Sunday, July 5th.

Sir Hamilton Harty, one of England's most distinguished conductors, will conduct his second concert in America next Sunday afternoon at the Woodland Theatre in Hillsborough.

Enroute to California, for his concerts in San Mateo, San Francisco and the Hollywood Bowl, Sir Hamilton stopped in Boston long enough to conduct a single Sunday evening concert in the Symphony Hall Summer popular concerts and achieved a success which the Boston critics unanimously declared unprecedented since the days of the Much regime.

Both at the end of the first half of the program and following the final number, the eager and long-continued handclapping gave way to shouts of "bravo" and finally the entire audience rose to its feet stamping and cheering. The conductor was brought back to the stage again and again to acknowledge the vociferous applause and the men of the orchestra laid down their instruments and applauded the composer-conductor to the echo" according to H. T. Parker, the veteran critic of the Boston Transcript.

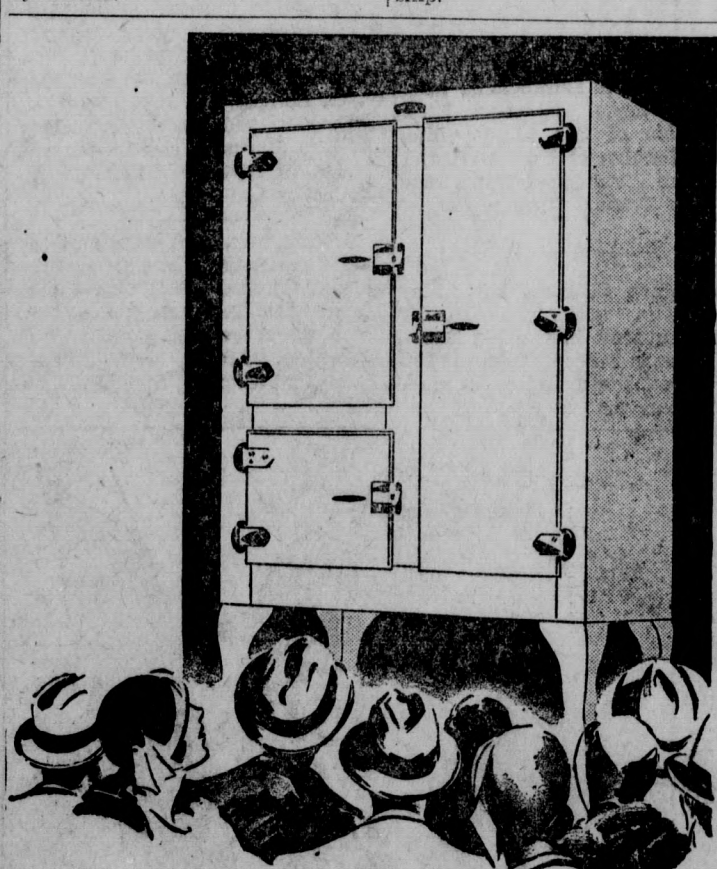

Harty, who has been permanent conductor of the Halle Concerts Society in Manchester since 1920, first gained wide recognition as pianist and artist accompanist in London. As a composer he has done much to perpetuate the folk music of his native Ireland, where as a youth he studied with his father who was a parish organist. At the age of 12, young Harty, who was born in Hillsborough, County Down, himself held a regular appointment as a church organist. In 1926 he was knighted in recognition of his distinguished service and conspicuous accomplishments in the field of music.

The program which Sir Hamilton will conduct on Sunday afternoon is made up of numbers in the conducting of which the eminent director probably has no peer. His own orchestral arrangement of some of the pieces included in the Water Music collection written by Handel especially for King George I will open the program. The works of two other distinguished English composers will also be heard. The Irish Symphony of Sir Charles Stanford and an excerpt from an opera by Frederick Delius are certain to prove of unusual interest. A brilliant climax is assured with the "Roman Carnival" by Berlioz.

The type of homes acquired have averaged $4,736 in value, while the farms have averaged $5,506. They vary in size and design from the modern Spanish 5-room casa to the California bungalow.

"As a result of the bond issues approved by the voters of the state, material prosperity will be returned," Stout declared, "in the form of increased building, larger real estate turnover with enhancement of values, and greater confidence of home-owning, home-loving families, whose heads have engaged in the armed forces of the United States in time of war and understand the true meaning of American citizenship."

GAY ADVENTURERS BY MILDRED BARBOUR

"Get me a telegraph blank at once," she told her startled maid.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

SHEILA ALLEN, bound for Europe in a tourist cabin, has a cabin-mate.

CONSTANCE KERR, a millionaire's daughter, who is her twin in looks. Sheila, after years in a rural town, is seeking adventure.

She has refused to marry her guardian, YOUNG DOCTOR MALCOM BAXTER. Constance tells Sheila she is Heaven-sent—a means of escape from a terrible mess.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

His letters begging her forgiveness are kept from her by her mother. She finds them immediately after her marriage. Realizing that she can never be the Count's wife, she takes passage for Europe at once. Harry is in England.

She begs Sheila to impersonate her in Paris for a few days, while she seeks Harry in London, to try to find a way out of her muddle.

Sheila, scenting adventure agrees. Constance gives Sheila her clothes and coaches her for the role she is to play. A first-class passenger.

TOMMY FITZGERALD, an old beau of Constance's, sees Sheila and hails her as Constance. Sheila tells him he has made a mistake.

At Southampton Constance leaves the ship as Sheila Allen, with all of Sheila's effects, including her passport.

At Harve, Fitzgerald sees Sheila with Constance's passport and she says she is the heiress, and explains the tourist passage as payment of a bet. A strange woman embraces her, as an old friend.

There she receives a message from the Count, who is in Paris.

Harry Edmonds arrives in Paris. Sheila is panic-stricken. She wonders where Constance is.

To escape both Harry and the informs her aunt in Baden-Baden that her niece is ill. The aunt radios Mr. Kerr, who radios Sheila that he is coming to Paris.

She succeeds in convincing Aunt Sophia that her presence is not required in Paris. A message from Mr. Kerr tells that the his yacht is disabled and that he cannot come to Paris for some time.

Harry urges her to marry him immediately. She puts him off.

Chapter 25—

Harry insists on coming along.
Between Two Fires

When Harry Edmonds stormed out of her suite in the Palace Hotel, after telling her that he too would be at Cannes, since the Count de Bellefonte planned to go there when she did, Sheila sank into a chair and groaned.

Ring for Fanchette, she instructed the girl to go down to the lounge and tell the Count that Miss Kerr was indisposed and was unable therefore, to keep her engagement for dinner.

A moment later there was a peremptory knock at the door. Sheila, without looking up, uttered a weary "Come in."

The door swung open, and the Count entered.

"No," he said, in answer to her murmured protest, "I must see you, if only for a moment. I was downstairs and saw that young fire-eater leave the hotel. What was the matter with him? Constance, what is there between this chap and you?"

Sheila measured the Count with an even glance. It would take some doing, she told herself, to explain things now. But she had to make the effort. Assuming her most lamb-like expression, she said:

"Jean, I need your help. Promise me that you won't make a scene when I tell you what has happened."

Her air of helplessness impressed him so much that he nodded, without saying a word.

"It's this way," she continued. "I'm terribly afraid that our secret is no longer a secret, and that my plans for getting my father to approve our marriage may be defeated. And, if they are, there will be no money for us, and our hopes for your diplomatic career will be gone for good."

Bellefonte's expression was one of genuine horror. "Why—why—why?" he stammered, "what has happened? Constance, tell me at once!"

"I'm very much afraid that Harry knows of our marriage. He didn't say so directly, but he intimated as much. You know, he's always been sort of fond of me, and, although I may be very conceited to say it, I think that he's entirely capable of becoming so jealous that—"

"You mean that he may tell people that he thinks we are married—that he may tell your father?"

She nodded.

"But he doesn't know where your father is, does he?"

"Yes, unfortunately. I send father and mother a message every day or two, to let them know how I am, and I was so unwise as to tell Harry, just to make conversation, that the yacht had been disabled off the coast of Sicily and that father is now in Flavia."

Bellefonte, with difficulty, refrained from telling Sheila then and there what he thought of her idea of conversation.

"Well, anyway, this is the point," she continued. "Harry is furious, because you are going to be in Cannes while I am there for the house-party. To placate him, I thought of asking the Baronne to have him as one of her guests. Of course," she added, craftily, "if you think that's not the thing to do, I'll drop the matter at once. But I thought it would allay his suspicions—having him at Cannes. What do you think, Jean? Your judgment is always so sound."

Bellefonte smiled foolishly. His first impulse was to rage and to refuse to agree to the proposal. But Sheila had played upon his vanity and his greed so expertly that the wind was taken out of his sails.

"Well, of course, Constance—" he sputtered, helplessly, while Sheila turned and walked to the window to hide a grin. "I don't like the idea, but, if you really think it will keep him from talking, from communicating with your father, in a fit of jealous rage, I suppose it is the only thing to do."

Sheila felt as if a great load had been lifted from her heart. "I really think it would be wise," she said, without turning around. "As you say, if he talks in a fit of jealous rage, all our plans will be ruined."

She sank into a chair, buried her face in her arms, and laughed silently.

The Count, who was pacing back and forth, saw that her shoulders were shaking. He stopped beside her chair and patted her head.

His assumption of a fatherly man-

GOVERNOR FOUND DRIVER HAD PLENTY OF TIME

AUSTIN, Tex., July 2 (UP)—Governor Ross Sterling tells this one with a chuckle:

"I had been visiting the Imperial prison farm, near Houston. They furnished me with a car and an efficient driver to return."

"If it will not make you too late, I wish you would drive me on to the Bay," (Sterling's summer home), I said.

"Certainly, sir."

"You will have enough time?"

"Oh, yes, sir, I have seven years." He has since been paroled.

"TALKIES" OF CHINESE BEGGERS DELAYS TRIP

PEIPING, July 2 (UP)—New difficulties have arisen for the joint Sino-French Citroen expedition which set out from Peiping this spring for Chinese Turkestan, to join the Citroen expedition coming from Syria overland to China.

Three French members of the expedition are accused of taking sound motion pictures of Chinese beggars without Chinese permission. Chinese members allege that this act was contrary to the agreement signed by the French members, and the expedition may be held up unless assurances are given that the offense will not be repeated.

It was the last straw. Sheila burst into hysterical giggles.

"Oh, my poor child!" cried Bellefonte. "You are worn out with the worry and strain of the last few days. Here—" he brought her a glass of water—"take a sip of this and try to compose yourself. Where the deuce is your maid? Ah," as Fanchette appeared, "here she is. Now let her put you to bed. We will postpone our dinner engagement."

Sheila assented thankfully, and Bellefonte left, with assurance that he would call the following afternoon.

He walked through the streets, angry and puzzled. There was something about the situation that made him very uneasy.

Was he wise in agreeing that it would be well to have Harry at Cannes? He couldn't forget that Harry had been his most dangerous rival.

"The young puppy," he muttered, "ought to call him out, challenge him, just to teach him a lesson. I've half a mind to do so."

LOW PAY THIS YEAR FOR HARVEST HANDS

GARDEN CITY, Kan., July 2 (UP)—Wages to harvest hands in the wheat fields of western Kansas this summer will be the lowest in several years, according to the farmers. About $2 a day and board is expected to be the usual scale.

The floating harvest hand problem became serious in this section about three weeks before the grain was ready to cut.

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD CATALPA BLOOMS IN BACK YARD

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., July 2 (UP)—A catalpa tree, believed to be the oldest and largest of its species in the United States, is still blooming here in the yard of Mrs. J. H. Abell.

The tree, said to be 80 years old, is about 30 feet high and at the trunk is nine feet in circumference. A smaller tree of the same class also is growing on the Abell property. It was planted at the same time as the other, but its growth was stunted when lightning struck it some years ago.

Pictures of the trees, taken recently when they were in full bloom, have been sent to the National Geographical Society for its magazine.

CHINESE CHARGE PAIR
ROBBED ROYAL TOMB

PEIPING, July 2 (UP)—Two men have been arrested here charged with the robbery of the tomb of the mother of the late Manchu Emperor Hsun Chih, in the Eastern Hills near Peiping.

The tomb was opened and robbed several weeks ago, and Chinese authorities suppressed the news. A quantity of valuable jades, porcelain and silks is said to have been taken.

This tomb is one of the few which has not been previously opened and robbed.

LACK OF POLITENESS
COST HIM LIQUOR LOAD

BERKELEY, July 2 (UP)—Tony P. Araugo, 26, forgot the old saying that little things count, and was in jail here today on a liquor charge because he had failed to be polite to a traffic officer.

Araugo failed to make a boulevard stop. When Policeman Donald Simpson began questioning him, he grew impertinent. The officer became hard-boiled, and escorted Araugo and his automobile to the city jail.

A search revealed that the car contained 120 gallons of alcohol in five-gallon cans.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 2 (UP)—More than 300 amateur astronomers collaborate more or less regularly with the Harvard Observatory, particularly in connection with variable star observations.

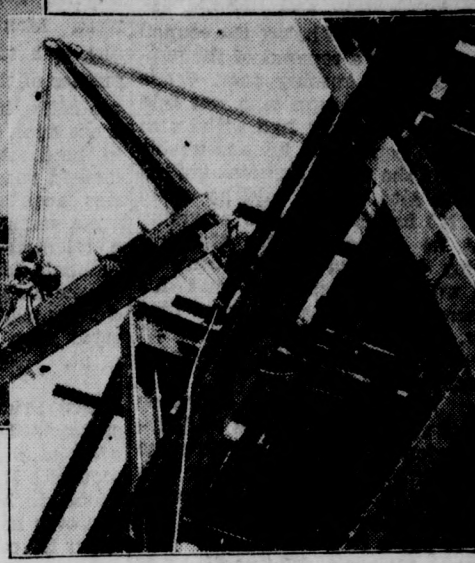

Eighteen years ago half a dozen amateurs began the collaboration under the direction of the late Professor Edward C. Pickering, one-time director of the Observatory. The group grew year by year until today it numbers upward of 300.

MENLO PARK

The city council met in special session Tuesday evening, all members being present. In the absence of the clerk, Councilman Crane was appointed temporary secretary.

V. Arata, who has the garbage contract, appeared before the council and asked for a renewal of the contract for the ensuing year. Crane said that Mr. Brown who was told to bid for the work had withdrawn from the contest as he was unable to secure the public dumping ground at Palo Alto. Arata said he would give $40 for the privilege providing that he would not be disturbed during the term of the contract and with an assurance that his agreement would be continued next year. He was awarded the contract under those terms, the agreement to start on July 1st.

An amended license ordinance was adopted. This applies to delivery wagons and trucks which come from the outside. They are to pay a license. The ordinance is passed to protect the local merchant who has to pay a stiff license.

City Attorney Whitworth was authorized to accept $500 for 31 feet of property on Live Oak avenue for the extension of the street condemnation proceedings which was started against the property some time ago.

Chief of Police Love was given authority to secure dog license tags, the cost of which is not to exceed the sum of $10.

The city engineer was empowered to put up a red warning sign at the end of Arbor avenue at San Francisco creek.

The superintendent of streets was instructed to have the wig was signal on Oak Grove avenue changed from its present position on the street to the sidewalk.

The council adjourned to July 7 to take up street matters requiring attention at that time.

MENLO PARK

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Tupper, Live Oak avenue, was gladdened by the arrival of a baby girl on June 25th. The family consists of two boys and a girl. The proud parents wished for a daughter and their wish was granted, hence their extreme joy.

Judge Jean Hoss is not only a just and able judge but a splendid preacher as well. On a hunting trip to Camp Lassen recently he delivered a stirring sermon one Sunday morning at the camp, having as his hearers a large number of campers and woodsmen from the country-side. Those who were present declared that his talk was inspiring and soul-stirring. The oldtimers of the mountain region departed with a determination to mend their ways and get closer to God as advised by Judge Hoss.

Mr. and Mrs. George Withworth and their child will leave in a short time for a three weeks' vacation to be spent in the southern portion of the state. Mr. Withworth is the city attorney for Menlo Park. Although a young man, he is coming to the front in his profession. His future is bright.

James Flood is here at Linden Towers from Yale where he has a brilliant record as a student. He graduates next year. Mr. Flood is a fine upstanding young man, thoroughly democratic, gentlemanly and possessing a pleasing and charming manner that wins him many friends. The young man loves Menlo Park, where he was born and where he may live after leaving college. The community is proud of this scion of a pioneer family. Notwithstanding his vast wealth he is still plain "Jim" to the people of Menlo Park.

James T. O'Keefe, Thomas Kearney and Thomas Glynn and J. Sullivan of Burlingame, left Saturday at the forks of the Salmon river in Siskiyou county. Bear are plentiful in the region at this time so the young men, each one of whom is over six feet tall, will have many thrills in hunting big game. Fishing at this season of the year is at its best.

Mrs. Harry Morey, widow of Harry Morey, is very ill at her home on MacBain avenue. Her life is fast fading. Her relatives are prepared for the worst. Mrs. Morey is beloved by everyone. Her long life of usefulness has been spent in this community where she enjoys the friendship of all.

L. T. Diebls, an accountant who maintains a beautiful home in Menlo Oaks, yesterday began the work of experting the books of this city for the Menlo Park council. His report will be ready for the next meeting of the council. It is believed that the fiscal year ending June 30, will make a good showing in the way of saving thanks to the wisdom of the present city council.

Miss Jean Kehrlein, the beautiful sixteen year old girl who was killed in an automobile accident on Mount Diablo last Sunday, was well known in Menlo Park. She was a student at Sacred Heart Academy here. Miss Kehrlein came from a pioneer family of this community. Her grandmother was formerly Miss Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Adams, pioneers of Atherton.

She married Charley Coon, whose father was an early time resident of this section. Coon's bridge was named after the elder gentleman. In the seventies one of the Coon Girls married the late Dr. Marwell McNutt. Maxwell McNutt, the attorney, is a son of the couple. The mother of the dead girl was a reigning belle in Menlo Park twenty years ago. Her girlhood was spent in the old Adams home on the Middlefield road. The Adams' holding was acquired by James L. Flood some years ago. The deceased was a talented and pretty girl, whose untimely death has caused profound sorrow among her many friends on the peninsula. The Kehrleins resided at a palatial home at Piedmont.

Last Friday evening Joseph Cull, surrounded by friends, passed away after a lingering illness of several months. His passing was calm and peaceful. Mr. Cull was born in Canada over sixty years ago. As a young man he came to California to follow his occupation as painter. When Councilman E. J. Crane secured the contract for painting St. Patrick's Seminary he brought Cull with him to be his foreman on the big job. That was in 1898 and Mr. Cull remained in Menlo Park since that time. Mr. Cull loved to dwell in the wide open space, to walk along the streams and listen to the music of the waters and rest beneath the widespread pines on the mountain side, there to enjoy the sweet songs of the birds. He loved nature in its sublimity. He responded to the call of the forest, where the wild flowers bloom and bluish unseen and where the wild deer and wolf scamper about undisturbed. Mr. Cull liked to commune with nature. She was his mistress. He loved none other. A great portion of his life was passed with her. Two months of each year were spent in the mountains by Mr. Cull in pursuit of the fleet-footed deer. Every stream in the state was whipped by him in casting for the elusive trout. He was an expert hunter, but few men knowing the traits of wild game better than did he. The winter months found him in pursuit of teal and mallard on the marshes of the state. It may be said that Cull got more enjoyment out of life than most men do, for he sought the things in nature from which true happiness springs. He was happy and jovial, making staunch friends and holding them. He was never married. He had no ties that kept him from his gun and rod. Many friends from all parts of the county attended the funeral at Palo Alto on Monday. His mourners were sincere and earnest in their sympathy for the man they loved and honored. The services though simple were beautiful and impressive. A large concourse followed the remains to their last resting place in Cypress Lawn cemetery. Mr. Cull is survived by three brothers and a sister residing in Canada.

Miss Katherine E. Doyle, the talented young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Doyle, graduated recently with honors from Wesley College, Boston. She took a two year post graduate course from the institution, having previously received her degree from Stanford. Miss Doyle on leaving Boston purchased a Ford car and came across the continent, making stops in the various places of interest.

Thomas M. Gearing of Pittsburgh was ordained a priest at the Catholic seminary there recently. The young clergyman is a cousin of O'Keefe Gearing of Menlo Park. Father Gearing was born November 9, 1906.

SO. AMERICAN HUMMING BIRD MAKES YEARLY FLIGHT
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo July 2 (UP)—An old visitor came back this year to see Ralph J. Ayer, a farmer living near the Black Forest region, and his wife. He is a humming bird named Bill and his home is in South America.

Bill flew north this spring as is his custom. And just why he flies each year across the Gulf of Mexico and over tropical jungles to the Ayer ranch was revealed by Mrs. Ayer, a farm house mistress with a liking for birds.

The humming bird has a fondness for syrup, Mrs. Ayer said, and each year upon his return perches himself upon a branch of a honeysuckle vine, which grows up over a house window. From this branch, Bill can feed from a bowl of syrup, placed there by Mrs. Ayer, to the satisfaction of his "sweet tooth."

An Expert Shows How

As archery promises to be one of the more popular sports this summer, Girl Scouts are already trying out their bow strings. Above, a Westfield, N. J. Girl Scout is learning how to "nock" an arrow, her instructor being Mrs. Donald Becker, also of Westfield, winner of many archery competitions.

someone he knows up until the time he goes out."

It was this little talk of Warden Smith's that settled the question for the governor, he said.

"It was the thought of those last, lonesome minutes in the death chamber," explained the governor, "Minutes that seem like an eternity. Not a soul—not even a warden—to talk to. That's what caused me to say I didn't want to experiment with human misery. And I still mean it, every word of it."

Rumblings of dissatisfaction over the preponderance of San Francisco appointments made by Governor James Rolph were heard this week from that region of California lying south of the Tehachapi.

The objections arose out of the latest appointment made by the executive, that of Theodore J. Roche as director of the newly created state department of motor vehicles, and the proposed appointment of Dudley Moulton as director of the department of agriculture.

Friends of the governor said it should be easily understood why Rolph, after 19 years as mayor of San Francisco, should place in office so many of his old-time cronies. They pointed to Ed Rainey, state bank commissioner; Dan O'Brien, director of penology; Hugh McKevitt, president of the state civil service commission; Dr. J. M. Toner, director of institutions; Tim Reardon, member of the highway commission; Fred Meyer, chief of service and supply, and Jimmy Herz, deputy director of public works.

Roche's appointment means that Frank G. Snook, now chief of the division of motor vehicles will remain as chief of the lital observers pointed out. Snook is Senator Hiram Johnson's man, and as Roche is a law partner of Johnson, there is little likelihood of his ousting the one person Johnson is asking be retained by the Rolph administration.

Two of Rolph's most valuable officials expect to resign within a month or two, it was made known this week. They are Raymond L. Haight, state corporation commissioner, and H. L. Carnahan, state building and loan commissioner, who accepted positions to reorganize their respective departments.

Harry A. Chamberlain, Los Angeles, former state senator, and unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor at the August primary election, is reported being groomed for the corporation commissioner's job to succeed Haight.

Because of friction in the state division of narcotic enforcement, Governor Rolph has requested the resignation of Harry Seager, Los Angeles, as chief. Edward Powers, federal patrol and probation officer for the Northern California district, will be appointed to succeed Seager. The step is being taken, it is explained, purely in the interest of harmony, and not because of any doubt of Seager's integrity.

The pardon application of Norman Selby "Kid McCoy" was turned down by Governor Rolph, who recommended the "Kid" apply for a parole from his 15 year term at San Quentin for manslaughter. The governor also received a letter from Prof. Albert Einstein, eminent scientist, recommending pardons for Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings. The executive also granted reprieves until September 25 for three condemned murderers sentenced to die last Friday, because, he said, "I don't believe in hanging on my wedding anniversary and because I need further time to study the cases."

"I've been wondering," he said, "how the condemned man feels in the gas chamber in those lonesome moments of his life. There is quite an interval between the time he is strapped to the chair, the chamber sealed, and the time the man on the roof outside rolls the cyanide of potassium eggs down the pipe into the jar of sulphuric acid, causing the gas to generate."

"You know, governor, we get to know these men that are to hang pretty well the last days of this life. We call them by their first names, take their messages, bring in their relatives, and even escort them on the march to the gallows. Well, on the last day we walk into their cell and say, 'come on, Jim, don't be afraid; let's get it over with.' He is strapped up, but he's with folks he knows to the last minute. He's not resentful, because he understands we must carry out the law. That's something a prisoner loses in the gas chamber, I think—the companionship of

SIGNATURE OF OLD BRITISH KING USED IN LAND SUIT

PHILADELPHIA, July 2 (UP)—The royal signature and seal of King Charles II of England figured in evidence at a hearing in the Federal building before a special master to settle the ancient boundary dispute between Jersey and Delaware.

Photostatic copies of documents hundreds of years old were introduced by Duane E. Miller, Assistant Attorney General of New Jersey. The originals, among which was a copy of the grant of southern New Jersey to the Duke of York, repose in the vaults of the New Jersey Historical Society at Trenton.

The 90-mile boundary line, over which there has waxed a dispute for more than two centuries, separates the valuable oyster beds of Delaware Bay. The case has been before the Supreme Court at various times during the past 125 years and the present hearing is before the special master appointed by that body in an effort to settle it.

Old Bell Goes to Museum SULLIVAN, Ind., June 22 (UP)—A bell cast in 1876, at a cost of $181.20, which hung in the Sullivan County courthouse for more than half a century, will become part of a museum collection, through activities of the local chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution. The bell was placed in oblation in a basement corner when a new courthouse was constructed here.
